Find Our Voice

Intro

(Yeah, yeah)
Steel pans play, hear the rhythm arise,
Teen hearts beating, reaching for the skies.

Verse 1

They told us to find our voice, but we got plenty to share,
Each word a rhythm, a story laid bare.
Roots in our journeys, the lines that entwine,
A grandma’s song, a friend’s playful rhyme.
In the kitchen, she’s singing, spices fill the air,
Arabic jokes flow, laughter everywhere.
From the text messages sent in the dead of the night,
To the codes that we write, we’re bringing the light.

Chorus

This is our voice—don’t lower it,
This is our name—don’t change it.
Empowered and proud, we’re claiming our space,
Every language we carry, we own it with grace.

Verse 2

The world tries to box us; they call it an accent,
But we shout “that’s echo!,” a legacy dense.
Generations of stories redefining the game,
Language is power, we’ll never be tamed.
It’s a gift that we share, not a gap to erase,
Every word that we speak creates a new space.
Dreams in Spanish, Tagalog they weave,
In Vietnamese or ASL, we inspire and believe.

Chorus

This is our voice—don’t lower it,
This is our name—don’t change it.
Empowered and proud, we’re claiming our space,
Every language we carry, we own it with grace.

Bridge

Some learn through poetry, some teach with a beat,
Navigating this world, we’ll never face defeat.
Code-switching our language, it’s just how we roll,
In their eyes, we’re different, but we’re still whole.
We are the tales that refuse to fit forms,
Rising through the noise, we’re breaking the norms.

Verse 3

Watch us rewrite the narrative, shape the new day,
With steel pans and beats, we’re paving the way.
Feel the rhythm in our hearts, can’t hold back this fire,
Together we stand; our voices climb higher.
No shushing our brilliance; we stand tall and proud,
Every word is a weapon, and we’re singing out loud.

Chorus

This is our voice—don’t lower it,
This is our name—don’t change it.
Empowered and proud, we’re claiming our space,
Every language we carry, we own it with grace.

Outro

So let the steel pans ring, let the world hear our sound,
We speak in layers of culture, together we’re bound.
We’re the echoes of history, the dreams of today,
Every word that we speak will forever convey.
We find our voices, we rise and we sing—
Powerful, vibrant, we’re everything.
