The Language Dance

Play & imagine · Children

Verse 1

In a town on a hill where the wild breezes blow,
Lived a kid who could speak in a language or so.
She'd whisper in Spanish, then dance into French,
With a laugh in Swahili, she'd leap off the bench!

Chorus

Words can fly, and twist, and spin—
From every place you've ever been!
Big or small, or short or long,
Every voice deserves a song!

Verse 2

A swirl from the desert, a rhyme from the sea,
A sentence that sings from a red maple tree.
From Arabic greetings to Tagalog delight,
She'd gather new phrases and launch them like kites!

Chorus

Words can fly, and twist, and spin—
From every place you've ever been!
Loud or soft, or bright or deep,
Some are funny, some make you weep!

Bridge

So hop on a syllable, slide down a sound,
Ride on a rhyme where the verbs bounce around!
Language is magic—it opens the door,
To friends you've not met and to tales never told before.

Chorus

Words can fly, and twist, and spin—
From every heart and every grin!
Shout them high or hum them low,
Let the power of language grow!

Verse 3

In the sun-drenched afternoons, she would sing with the birds,
With a hop, skip, and a jump, she'd dance with her words.
From cultures around, she painted the air,
With stories unspoken, she'd wish you were there!

Refrain

Words can fly, and twist, and spin—
From every place you've ever been!
Big or small, or short or long,
Every voice deserves a song!

Outro

So join in the laughter, the joy in the sound,
In this magical town, where our dreams are unbound.
Every language a treasure, every tongue a delight,
Let's celebrate together, dance into the night!
